Iran Clerics' Feud Boils Over

Ex-president's relatives arrested as election crisis deepens

TEHRAN, IRAN | A backstage struggle among Iran's ruling clerics burst into the open Sunday when the government said it had arrested the daughter and other relatives of Ayatollah Hashemi Rafsanjani, who is one of the country's most powerful men.

Tehran's streets fell mostly quiet for the first time since a bitterly disputed June 12 presidential election, but cries of "God is great!" echoed again from rooftops after dark, a sign of seething anger at a government crackdown that peaked with at least 10 protesters' deaths Saturday.

The killings drove the official death toll to at least 17 after a week of massive street demonstrations by protesters who say hardline President Mahmoud Ahmadinejad stole his re-election win. But searing images posted online — including gruesome video purporting to show the fatal shooting of a teenage girl — hinted the true toll may be higher.

Opposition leader Mir Hossein Mousa-

White House Pressured on Iran

Some lawmakers want Obama to take firmer stance on vote

WASHINGTON | In his first major test of international leadership, President Obama is struggling for the right stance in the face of Iran's post-election upheaval as political opponents at home accuse him of inaction.

Obama's measured statements so far attempt to speak up for human rights while preserving U.S. options and lessening the chance that he becomes a scapegoat for the cleric-led government.

Obama kept a public silence Sunday, although a spokesman said he discussed Iran with foreign policy advisers in the Oval Office for more than 30 minutes.

Some Republicans used their broadcast appearances on Sunday morning talk shows to call the president timid or feckless.

"The president of the United States is supposed to lead the free world, not follow it," said Sen. Lindsey Graham, R-S.C. "He's been timid and passive more than

I would like."

Sen. Chuck Grassley, R-Iowa, said a slow or muted U.S. response risks undermining the aspirations of Iranian voters to change or question their government.

"If America stands for democracy and all of these demonstrations are going on in Tehran and other cities over there, and people don't think that we really care, then, obviously, they're going to question, 'Do we really believe in our principles?" Grassley said.

Obama has tried to hold a middle ground as the crisis unfolds.

Democrats in the Senate say Obama has struck the right balance.

"He's got a very delicate path to walk here," said Sen. Chris Dodd, D-Conn. "You don't want to take ownership of this [turmoil in Iran]." ANNE GEARAN (AP)

GAO: Nuke Scanners Inadequate

Agency says reworked machines to protect ports have major flaw

WASHINGTON | Federal investigators say the government's next generation of radiation detectors are only marginally better at detecting hidden nuclear material than monitors already at U.S. ports but would cost more than twice as much.

The machines are intended to prevent terrorists or criminals from smuggling into the U.S. a nuclear bomb or its explosive components hidden in a cargo container.

The monitors now in use can detect the presence of radiation, but they cannot distinguish between threatening and nonthreatening material. Radioactive material can be found naturally in ceramics and cat box filler, but would be of no use in making a bomb, for instance.

The Department of Homeland Security has said the new machines it is developing can distinguish between cat box filler and dangerous radioactive material, and produce fewer false alarms than the current ones.

The new ones are also better at detecting lightly shielded material. But the machines perform at about the same level when detecting radiological and nuclear materials hidden in a lead box or casing, the most likely way a terrorist would try to sneak the materials into this country, the Government Accountability Office said in a report to be released Monday.

The new monitors "have a limited ability to detect certain nuclear materials at anything more than light shielding levels," the report said.

The report raises the question of whether the new machines, at about $822,000 each, are worth the cost if they're not that much better than current ones that cost about $308,000.

The department thinks the benefits outweigh the additional cost. Spokeswoman Sara Kuban said Friday the department would not comment on a report that was not yet public. EILEEN SULLIVAN (AP)

Iran Tightens Grip on Foreign News

24 reporters arrested; watchdog says media are a 'priority target'

PARIS | Iranian authorities have arrested at least 24 journalists and bloggers since postelection protests began a week ago, and a media watchdog says reporters are a "priority target" for Iran's leadership.

Among those detained were the head of the Association of Iranian Journalists and a Canadian reporter for Newsweek. The British Broadcasting Corporation's correspondent has been ordered to leave the country.

"It's becoming more and more problematic for journalists," said Benoit Hervieu of Paris-based Reporters Without Borders, also known by its acronym RSF.

The group released the names of 23 Iranian journalists, editors and bloggers arrested since June 14, and says it has lost contact with several others thought to be detained or in hiding. Hervieu said RSF verified each arrest via its network of reporters and activists in Iran.

Newsweek said in a statement later that its correspondent Maziar Bahari, a Canadian citizen, was detained without charge Sunday. Newsweek defended his coverage of Iran as "fair and nuanced" and called for his release.

In most cases, the reasons behind the detentions are unclear.

Iran's authorities have long kept a close eye on local and international media operating in the country, and clamped down as protests engulfed Tehran last week over the June 12 presidential election, the biggest challenge to the cleric-led government in 30 years.

Authorities have banned foreign media from reporting from the street and allow only phone interviews and information from officials sources such as state TV. Many Web sites have been blocked.

"The regime has been visibly shaken by its own population and does not want to let this perception endure," RSF said in a statement. ANGELA CHARLTON (AP)

N.Y. Times' Secret Was 'Agonizing'

Editor says writer's abduction by Taliban not reported for safety

NEW YORK | Deciding not to report initially on reporter David Rohde's capture by the Taliban for seven months was "an agonizing position," New York Times executive editor Bill Keller said Sunday.

"All along, we were told by people that probably the wisest course for David's safety was to keep it quiet," Keller said in an interview on CNN.

The Times reported Saturday that Rohde escaped from seven months in captivity in Afghanistan and Pakistan by climbing over a wall on Friday.

Rohde was abducted Nov. 10 along with an Afghan reporter and a driver south of the Afghan capital of Kabul. The Times kept the kidnapping quiet out of concern for the men's safety, and other media outlets followed suit at the Times' request.

"It was an agonizing position that we revisited over and over again," Keller said in the CNN interview with Washington Post media critic Howard Kurtz. "But I also have a responsibility for the people who work for me."

Keller has told the Times that the newspaper had been advised by Rohde's family, experts in kidnapping cases and others that publicizing the abduction "could increase the danger to David and the other hostages." He said no ransom was paid. KAREN MATTHEWS (AP)

Iraq Police: Blast Was Al-Qaeda's

Truck bombing that killed 75 is nation's worst attack this year

BAGHDAD | Police and rescue crews sifted through the rubble of a mosque and dozens of flattened mud-brick homes on Sunday looking for survivors of the worst attack in Iraq this year — a truck bombing blamed on al-Qaeda that killed at least 75 people.

Political parties said Saturday's attack against a Shiite mosque near the ethnically tense city of Kirkuk was aimed at destabilizing Iraq.

The bombing, which wounded 254 people, came as U.S. troops have been withdrawing from Iraqi cities as part of a deal that requires all troops to leave the country by the end of 2011. There are concerns that violence will spike after U.S. troops fully pull out of the cities by a June 30 deadline.

The U.S. military sent search dogs Sunday to help find up to 25 people still missing. Maj. Derrick Cheng, a spokesman for U.S. forces in northern Iraq, said the U.S. was also sending food, water, blankets, fuel and clothing. PATRICK QUINN (AP)

Portugal to Take Few From Gitmo

LISBON, PORTUGAL | Portugal will take in two or three Guantanamo detainees once they are released by the U.S. detention center, the foreign minister said.

President Obama has pledged to close the Guantanamo Bay detention center by early next year and has asked Europeans to accept some of the camp's 229 detainees.

The EU, which long argued for the prison's closure, agreed last week to "turn the page" on Guantanamo, but said it was up to individual EU members to decide whether to take in detainees. Few have agreed. (AP)

The U.S. government will soon be offering vou incentives to buy a brand-new vehicle

PERSONAL FINANCE | Car shoppers could take advantage of government incentives worth up to $4,500 to send their old gas guzzler to the scrap heap in favor of a more fuel-efficient new vehicle this summer.

President Obama is expected to sign into law the "cash for clunkers" program, which was approved by the Senate on Thursday. A clunker is an old, worn out car. The plan could give owners of low gas mileage vehicles a reason to visit their local car dealer during an economic downturn.

"I've been sitting on the fence for about a year," said Jim Seegraves, 44, who has been looking to replace his 2000 GMC Sierra pickup truck. "This legislation will help me get over the hump and get the car that I want."

The bill provides $1 billion for the auto sales program from July through November, and the Congressional Budget Office expects that with a total of $4 billion, about 1 million new vehicles could be purchased. The government is expected to implement the program by early August.

Under the program, the new vehicle can be U.S. or foreign-built and must have a manufacturer's retail price of less than $45,000.

Automakers and their unions have lobbied heavily for the incentives to help the auto industry boost sales and stabilize General Motors Corp. and Chrysler Group LLC, which have received billions of dollars for government-led bankruptcies. In May, U.S. auto sales were 34 percent lower than a year ago. KEN THOMAS (AP)

It's a New Day at Eastern Market

Famed D.C. bazaar rises from the ashes for grand reopening

WASHINGTON | The interior is painted a dark, salmon pink, just as it was when the place was built in 1873. Sunlight glows from the skylights. And Juan Jose Canales, one of the mainstay vendors at Eastern Market, has added seafood sausage and tuna prosciutto to his impressive range of meats, "so we have something new on this day."

Eastern Market will have a lot of new touches Friday, when it reopens more than two years after a blaze that stunned devotees of the venerated Capitol Hill food hall.

The $22 million rebuilding project has created a market this generation has never seen. For years before the April 30, 2007, fire, the place was in disrepair. Now it is more structurally sound and truer to its magnificent past.

Canales, who opened his deli 26 years ago, said even before the fire that the building was "crying for help."

"I saw a big crack in one end, at the south corner. I looked close at it and always wondered, 'Oh, my God, what if the building collapses? That's all of my family working here," Canales, 58, said. PETULA DVORAK (THE WASHINGTON POST)

Jays Halt Nats' Winning Streak

Toronto gets 4 in 1st inning; Washington denied a series sweep

NATIONALS | The Toronto Blue Jays avoided the unsavory distinction of becoming the first team to be swept by the bottomdwelling Washington Nationals, getting five RBI

from Lyle Overbay and a solid outing by Ricky Romero in a 9-4 victory Sunday.

Romero (4-3) allowed two runs over seven innings, taking a little of the strain off the Blue Jays' bullpen after extrainning losses Friday and Saturday. Overbay's 3-for-5 day included a solo homer in the third.

The loss snapped a season-high four-game winning streak for the Nationals, who took the last two of three against the New York Yankees and the first two against the Blue Jays.

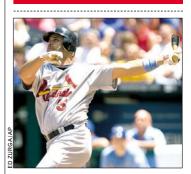

Ryan Zimmerman walks back to the dugout after striking out in the ninth inning against the Blue Jays. The Nationals lost the third game of the interleague series.

The number of days since the Nationals last completed a series sweep. The Nats' last sweep came on Aug. 31, 2008, against the Braves.

Washington allowed only six runs in those four games, but Shairon Martis (5-2) equaled that number in five innings of work Sunday. He allowed four runs in the first, setting the tone for the loss.

The Nationals bailed Romero out of trouble more than once, going 1 for 10 with runners in scoring position while he was in the game. Romero struck out Ryan Zimmerman and Adam Dunn back to back with runners on first and second in the first inning.

It helped that Washington's No. 3 and No. 5 hitters - Zimmerman and Austin Kearns, respectively — are in competing slumps. Zimmerman went 0 for 5 to extend his skid to 0 for 17, while Kearns was 0 for 2 to put his slide at 0 for 15. JOSEPH WHITE (AP)

2 Homers by Pujols Help La Russa to 2,500th Win

Albert Pujols finished off a threeday romp in Kansas City with two homers and six RBIs, helping the St. Louis Cardinals rout the Royals 12-5 Sunday in win No. 2,500 for manager Tony La Russa. Pujols hit three homers and drove in 10 runs in the Cardinals' three-game sweep over their cross-state rivals, in the town Pujols went to school. (AP)

Thabeet Cancels Pre-Draft Workout, Cites Shoulder

Hasheem Thabeet canceled a predraft workout with the Grizzlies on Sunday citing a shoulder injury, but he also had plans to talk to other teams. "Thabeet was a combination of he's had some shoulder situations and he wanted to talk to some other teams," Grizzlies general manager Chris Wallace said of the center out of Connecticut, who may go second in the draft. Roberts a Hit in the Birds' Sweep

Single in 8th inning extends Orioles' win streak to 5 games

ORIOLES | Brian Roberts had the decisive hit for the second-straight game and a tiebreaking single in the eighth inning, and the Baltimore Orioles completed a threegame sweep of the center off Cole Hamels (4-3) that made it 2-1 and sent the Orioles to their fifth-straight win. Roberts hit a two-run homer with two outs in the ninth off Rvan Madson in a 6-5 win Saturday night.

Jim Johnson tossed a scoreless eighth for the Orioles and George Sherrill worked a perfect ninth for his 15th save.

Roberts' single made a winner of starter Jeremy Guthrie (5-7) for the first time since May 25. Guthrie tossed three-hit ball over seven innings and allowed only Greg Dobbs' fourth homer in the second inning.

BASEBALL NO DICE-K As expected, the Red Sox put struggling Daisuke Matsuzaka on the disabled list, citing weakness in his shoulder, before the game against the Braves on Sunday at Fenway Park. "This is not going to be a two-week DL," manager Terry Francona said, meaning it would be much longer. "We have a lot of work ahead of us." Matsuzaka, who has an 8.23 ERA, probably will have a brief period of rest followed by a strengthening program. The details are still being worked out. "It is the club's decision," he said. (AP)

Grass Looks Greener for Federer

Nadal's withdrawal from Wimbledon may ease bid for 6th title

WIMBLEDON | Roger Federer is building something of a reputation as an on-court crier, and he remembers well the first time he wept after winning a match.

It was July 2, 2001, at Wimbledon, the tournament that means the most to him. Federer was 19, upand-coming, and making his Centre Court debut in the fourth round when he stunned Pete Sampras, who was 29, seeded No. 1 and seeking an eighth Wimbledon title.

Back then, Federer had yet to reach the semifinals, let alone win a title, at any Grand Slam event. Eight years later, as Wimbledon begins Monday, Federer is bidding to break Sampras' career record of 14 major championships.

The complexion of Federer's pursuit of a sixth Wimbledon title changed significantly Friday: He doesn't have to worry about dealing with defending champion Rafael Nadal, who withdrew from the tournament because of bad knees.

Nadal's exit was the talk of the grounds this weekend, and Federer called it "very disappointing for the tournament and also for myself."

Last year, Nadal reduced Federer to tears by winning the longest singles final in tournament history, a four-hour, 48-minute test that ended 9-7 in the fifth set. That ended Federer's streak of 40 consecutive wins at Wimbledon, and he's ready to start anew.

"The focus is on the first round — and the first point," Federer said. "Trying to regain my Wimbledon crown, I guess, stands over trying to beat Pete's record right now." (AP)

Few would have guessed it would be Ricky Barnes, left — not Tiger Woods, center, or Phil Mickelson, right — leading the Open.

Barnes' Lead Slips on a Wet Day

U.S. Open champion to be crowned a day late due to weather

GOLF | The U.S. Open moved one round closer to a conclusion Sunday afternoon, even if very little was settled on soggy Bethpage Black and the champion would not be decided for at least one more day

Ricky Barnes scratched out an even-par 70 and kept his one-shot lead over Lucas Glover.

It was the final hour of the rain-delayed third round that suddenly raised so many intriguing possibilities.

Not long after Barnes became only the fourth player in U.S. Open history to reach double digits under par, his game became a struggle. He went to the back nine with a six-shot lead, but when his 4-foot par putt on the 18th didn't touch the hole, most of that was gone.

Barnes, who has never held a 54-hole lead anywhere but the minor leagues, was at 8-under 202 and paired in the final group with Glover, who rallied with three birdies on the back nine to shoot 70.

"I knew it was going to be wet and tough, and I knew my nerves would be tested," Barnes said. "I wouldn't have liked to bogey the last hole and end it that way. But I've got to go back, take my shoes off and think, 'Hey, I shot even par on Saturday with the lead.' If I go out and do the same thing, someone is going to have to really come back low ... to catch me."

While it was another four shots to find the next group of challengers, they were optimistic — particularly Phil Mickelson.

Mickelson, determined to finally bring home a U.S. Open trophy to a wife battling breast cancer, knocked in a 30-foot birdie on the 16th hole and finished with a 35-foot birdie on the final hole to shoot 69, leaving him six shots behind. "I'm one good round away," Mickelson said.

Eleven players remained under par, a group that did not include defending champion Tiger Woods.

Clint Dempsey reacts after scoring the third U.S. goal in its win on Sunday.

U.S. Tops Egypt, Makes Semis in An Unlikely Turn

SOCCER | On the verge of elimination and facing long odds, the United States came up with its best performance at a major international tournament in seven years and an improbable semifinal berth at the Confederations Cup.

Charlies Davies scored in the first half, and Michael Bradley and Clint Dempsey added goals in the final half hour to lead the United States over Egypt 3-0 Sunday.

The United States needed to win by three goals and have Italy lose by three, and that's exactly what happened.

With Brazil's defeat of Italy, the United States finished second in Group B and will face Spain on Wednesday. (AP)

Mother, May She? Yes

Cameron Diaz walks in a mature direction with her character in 'My Sister's Keeper'

NUTURER | Cameron Diaz is known mostly for her comedy roles in "There's Something About Mary," "Charlie's Angels" and "Shrek," but over the course of her career the popular actress has delivered some worthy dramatic performances in films such as "Vanilla Sky," "Gangs of New York" and, more recently, "In Her Shoes."

One thing the Southern California native hadn't done before is play a mom on-screen. In "My Sister's Keeper," she stars as the mother of three. Based on the best-selling book by Jodi Picoult, the drama delves into how a terminal illness affects members of a family.

Tall, blond and beautiful, Diaz doesn't seem like an obvious casting choice for a suburban mom whose entire world revolves around keeping her daughter alive. Sara is unconcerned how her focus on the one child affects the rest of the family or how outsiders perceive her. To Diaz, it was a challenge she couldn't pass up.

"Playing a mom to teenagers — I didn't think about it in terms of what it meant to my career," says the 36-year-old. "I thought of what it meant to the story."

Diaz says being an actress means tackling different kinds of roles, and she has always looked at

A NEW DIRECTION: Cameron Diaz sheds her bombshell persona by playing the mother of an ailing girl (Sofia Vassilieva).

playing a variety of roles in various genres. (Her next picture, "The Box," is a sci-fi thriller — another first for her.)

Nick Cassavetes, who directed "My Sister's Keeper," says he was confident in his choice of Diaz as the overprotective mom.

Cassavetes explained to Diaz that he wanted her to play a woman with a single-mindedness of purpose who doesn't care what anyone thinks of her.

"When I explained to her what I wanted, she said, 'Really?' And

Diaz's character, Sara, subjects her daughter Anna ("Little Miss Sunshine's" Abigail Breslin) to numerous medical procedures on behalf of her gravely ill older daughter ("Medium's" Sofia Vassilieva). Telling her parents she is fed up with being used as a lab rat, 11-year-old Anna then files for legal emancipation.

"What drew us all to the story," Diaz says, "was this family, and the stories of each of these characters.

"I think we all related to the fact that there isn't anything you wouldn't give someone that you love that deeply. That's what I think is so effective in the film." Angela dawson (entertainment news wire)

T.R. Knight as Dr. George O'Malley.

The Good Doctor Is Out

T.R. Knight leaves his 'Grey's Anatomy' role as Dr. O'Malley

DEPARTURE | A medical mystery was solved Friday: T.R. Knight won't be back on "Grey's Anatomy" next season.

"Leaving 'Grey's Anatomy' was not an easy decision for me to make. I am extremely grateful to have had the opportunity to play this character and will miss my fellow cast and crew very much," Knight said in a statement.

He also thanked fans for their support, but conspicuously didn't mention series creator and executive producer Shonda Rhimes.

Knight, who played Dr. George O'Malley, had seen his role diminish this season and asked to be let out of a contract that still had three years to go.

Katherine Heigl's character, Dr. Izzie Stevens, also appeared to have an uncertain future after brain surgery in the May finale. But Heigl will return to the show, ABC said Friday. LYNN ELBER (AP)

BOX OFFICE License to Wed Movie audiences accepted a proposal from Sandra Bullock and Ryan Reynolds, who scored the summer's first big romantic comedy hit. Bullock and Reynolds' "The Proposal" took in $34.1 million to open as the weekend's No. 1 movie, according to studio estimates Sunday. The Disney flick delivered the biggest opening ever for Bullock, nearly double that of her previous best of $17.6 million for the 2007 paranormal thriller "Premonition." (AP)

Revival Revisited Once upon a time, there was a band called Creedence Clearwater Revival. and everyone loved it. One day, it broke up because of an evil witch named "artistic differences," and the band disappeared from Earth. Sort of, Creedence Clearwater Revisited, which plays the late group's hits, is made up of the former band's rhythm section. And it's rocking tonight at Wolf Trap! Record Industry Maverick

A pioneer of the indie label, Dave Douglas is jazz-tastic on the joyful 'Spirit Moves'

MUSIC | Trumpeter Dave Douglas didn't set out to be a pioneer in jazz - and that's not even a reference to his striking music, which incorporates belop and the avantgarde with equal aplomb. He was one of the first major jazz artists to truly harness the power of the Internet to build his own record label, Greenleaf Music.

"Five years ago, I would have never envisioned we'd be doing things the way we do them now," said Douglas, 46. "We really started out trying to be a brick-andmortar label. But as we saw what was happening in the market, and we saw the interaction with fans and what was possible creatively, we just put more emphasis into what we are now."

Greenleaf's latest release is Douglas' "Spirit Moves" CD with his band, Brass Ecstasy. The group's name is a direct tribute to Lester Bowie's Brass Fantasy, though "Spirit Moves" isn't specifically dedicated to the trumpet legend.

"I'm a huge fan of Lester, and I started the band during a weeklong celebration of Lester ... in 2005," said Douglas. "[But] the record isn't technically a tribute to Lester, because by the time I had made the record, I had this feeling that the vision had shifted from something just coming out of Lester. ... I feel like it ended up with all these sorts of associations with brass music." CHRISTOPHER PORTER (EXPRESS)

For the Love of Teenagers

TEENS | If you have a niche: Scratch it! The ABC Family Channel has done a nice job of defining itself as the place for teen and tween melodramas. "The Secret Life of the American Teenager" (8 p.m., ABC Family) returns for a second season, even if our teen's secret has long been exposed.

"Make It or Break It" (9 p.m., ABC Family) follows. A Cinderella tale set in the competitive world of Olympic-level gymnastics, "Break" stars Chelsea Hobbs as Emily, the poor scholarship girl given a chance to practice at a top gym in Colorado. Her arrival, and her instantly recognizable skills, threaten a trio of competitors, who serve as evil stepsisters to her scullery maid.

"Make It or Break It" features Cassie Scerbo as a teenage Olympic hopeful.

But these up-talking snoots have problems of their own, mostly in the form of their flighty and dysfunctional parents who provide more suds for this high-strung soap opera. Look for Peri Gilpin ("Frasier") as one of the more sane gym mothers. She's more Mama than drama here, but it's nice to see her back on prime-time television. Blogger Geoffrey Abraham is against posting about one's job loss on Facebook. "Nothing is less attractive than desperation," he wrote on Looklefty.blogspot.com.

Need-to-Know Networking

Should you tell your Facebook friends you've been laid off?

You're called into your boss' office and told that your job no longer exists. You go home in a daze and sign onto Facebook. There it is — a prompt asking: "What's on your mind?" Do you tell your Facebook network you've lost your job?

Many are facing this dilemma. While there's no definitive etiquette, people have strong feelings about the practice of using a status update to alert the world that they've gotten the ax.

Geoffrey Abraham, an advertising copywriter in Portland, Ore., thinks Facebook is no place to hang up your shingle. On Look lefty.blogspot.com, his rantfilled post "Let's Keep Facebook Fun, People" takes to task people who complain about their unemployed status on the social networking site.

"I understand that what I am witnessing is a sign of the times. In real time," he wrote. "But nothing is less attractive than desperation."

But many others feel like it gives them more control of their situation.

Christina Zila was laid off from her public relations job in Las Vegas at the beginning of April.

Since being laid off has little or nothing to do with your ... performance, why should it be a secret?"

-CHRISTINA ZILA

"One of the first things I did ... was to tweet it," she says. "My reasoning at the time was that it was the most efficient way of letting my friends and contacts know what had happened."

"Since being laid off has little or nothing to do with your personal performance, why should it be a secret? The more people who know that you're looking, the more eyes and ears are out there helping you search." CARYN BROOKS (AP)

BY INVITATION ONLY: UPCOMING WEDDINGS & UNIONS

Jeff Cubbal. Natalie Fletcher

Jeff, 27, is an operations manager. Natalie, 23, is a sales associate. They live on Capitol Hill.

- The Main Event: A traditional ceremony on June 27 with 200 guests.
- Honeymoon: Grand Cayman.
- How They Met: Jeff was a senior in high school when she was a freshman. They met at band camp. "We didn't date until later, because she had a boyfriend before the end of the week! But I knew he wasn't going to be much competition."

- First Impressions: He was into heavy metal, so her first thought was, "Who is this scary-looking guy who is talking to me?"
- First Date: On a band trip to Disney World, they spent 22 hours together on the bus, and she "totally" fell for him. They spent the next three days together.
- How He Proposed: In Vegas in front of the Bellagio fountains. "Natalie had no idea why we were running full steam to get to the show in time. I was so scared, I actually dropped the ring! It almost went in the fountains!"
- Stupidest Fight: If she leaves an empty toilet paper roll, "I run into the living room and throw it at her!"
- Pet Names: "I call her 'Natters' or 'Snuggs,' short for 'Snugglebear.' We pretty much make our friends want to vomit."

"I was so scared, I actually dropped the ring! It almost went in the fountains!"

Hoya, Hoya Saxa

LIZ NUGENT comes from a Georgetown family. She's the 11th in her family to graduate from Georgetown University, so it's fitting that she and fellow Hoya HEATH WALDEN, who met on Georgetown's swim team, will wed in Georgetown's Dahlgren Chapel. Their first date was at a Georgetown restaurant, and their rehearsal dinner is at Agraria, another Georgetown hot spot ("My mother's been planning it," Heath says). And the favors: Georgetown Cupcakes.

Heath proposed in 2007, when Liz was studying Arabic in Egypt. "I couldn't believe he had planned everything from the U.S.," she says. He'd even asked her parents for permission, and her dad had asked whether he'd make her happy. He also asked whether Heath would send their kids to Georgetown.

Liz, 24, is a graduate student at Georgetown. Heath, 25, is a medical student — at Georgetown. They live in Arlington.

Emilia Borgatta, Jake Smith

Emilia, 24, is a graduate student. Jake, 24, is a program officer at a nonprofit. They live in Chevy Chase.

- The Main Event: A beach wedding on July 18 with just a few friends; the reception's a week later in Washington state, with 50 guests.
- Honeymoon: Peru.
- How They Met: In a high school lit class. "I realized I did not like anyone I was sitting by," she says. "I moved across the room to the only other empty seat, behind the guy who was always reading, ignoring the teacher and somehow getting A's. I was intrigued, to say the least."
- First Impressions: "She was a constant irritation! All I wanted to do was "All I wanted to do was [ignore] everything around me, but she just would not let me."

Embassy in Montevideo, Uruguay, a guest in her house. Very romantic!" Elizabeth Esparza, ■ How He Proposed: On the National escape from that horrible class by ignorwhere he was stationed as a Tim Walsh Marine and she was interning. Mall over a picnic brunch.

Elizabeth, 32, is a State Department special agent. Tim, 29, is a Department of Energy management analyst. They live in D.C.

- The Main Event: A "casually elegant" event with I20 guests on June I9.
- Honeymoon: Thailand. "High on our 'must-do' list is an elephant tour of the jungle," Elizabeth says.
- How They Met: At the American
- First Impressions: "Her first night there, we went to dinner," Tim says. "We spent several hours talking. The next day, I was in uniform and she didn't even recognize me. ... So much for first impressions." "In my defense," Elizabeth says, "I was tired and jet-lagged."
- First Date: He came to visit her in San Diego. But the course of true love never did run smoothly: When he had his first fish taco, "I proceeded to become deathly ill. I was immobilized in bed for two days while

- Pet Names: He calls her "Chivita." a play on "chivito," the national sandwich of Uruguay.
- When She Knew: He visited her in Conakry, Guinea. "To say that Conakry isn't exactly a dream vacation is a HUGE understatement," Elizabeth says.
- Celebrating Heritage: In the Mexican tradition, a lasso will be placed in a figure eight around the couple after they exchange vows, symbolizing unity.

ing everything around me, but she just would not let me."

- First Date: Dinner and a walk around a nearby lake.
- How He Proposed: When the weather went sour on a trip to the beach, they spent the day shopping, "and, eventually, ended up in jewelry stores," he says. "Everything just kind of fell into place from there."
- Stupidest Fight: "We got into a shouting match over which was more efficient for eating rice: chopsticks or spoons," Emilia says.
- The Dress: Tea-length. "And bare feet. It will be very simple and perfect for dipping my toes in the ocean."

Horoscope

By Stella Wilder

CANCER (June 21-July 22) Something seems to be missing, though you can't quite put your finger on it. A loved one certainly has an opinion.

LEO (July 23-Aug. 22) The more you try to repeat yourself, the more likely you will be to suffer the kind of disappointment that is not easily overcome.

VIRGO (Aug. 23-Sept. 22) Any attempt to combine business with pleasure is likely to prove somewhat hazardous, especially if you do things under the table.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 22) You may feel as though things are changing around you and you are unable to keep up. The truth is, you're more solid than you thought.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23-Nov. 21) You're in the mood to do things in a grand manner. There is every likelihood that you'll attract a good deal of attention.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22-Dec. 21) You can get a great deal done simply by pursuing your goals in a simple and solitary manner. You don't need to be part of a team.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19) You may surprise even those who know you best with an announcement involving travel — or a permanent change of address.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18) A look back will afford you a clearer view of what lies ahead. Indeed, the past and the future are closely linked for you.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20) Though you may feel that your independence is worth protecting at all costs, certain things you cannot do without even a little bit of help.

ARIES (March 21-April 19) Continue doing things the old way, and you're likely to find that the competition has not only gained on you but gone ahead.

TAURUS (April 20-May 20) You should be able to get through a tough time with your confidence and self-esteem intact — no matter what others may say about you.

GEMINI (May 21-June 20) You can expect this to be a busy day, and in the midst of everything else, you may be asked to do something quite unusual and unforeseen.
